Education Studies

The Education Studies programme is an exciting and intellectually stimulating programme that will provide students with a solid understanding of education before pursuing a career in teaching or education more widely.

It will offer students an opportunity to be curious and bring together perspectives from history, sociology, psychology and philosophy of education and apply them to current education policy and practice;

Students will have the chance of being innovative and resourceful and of gaining valuable work experience in a school or in an educational department in, for example, a museum, a business, a local authority, or a national or international educational charity. Additionally, they will be involved in a community based project.

 Where theory meets practice

Why choose this degree?

- 1/ Do you want to change the world through education?
- 2/ This flexible and inclusive degree explores education from early years to adult learning, with a focus on diversity, equality and social impact.

"Shape the future through the power of education."

What you will study

Education Studies will be taught through the foundational disciplines of history, philosophy, psychology and sociology. Together, these subjects allow a full range of enquiry: the study of history introduces students to ‘what was’, sociology shows ‘what is’, philosophy encourages thinking about ‘what should be’ and psychology shows ‘what we can be’. The knowledge and understanding provided by the study of these disciplines is essential if students want to become good teachers or follow any other career in education.

Discover wide-ranging career opportunities in fields relating not only to education but also to social care, health care, careers and guidance, and the voluntary sector.

Enjoy success as higher level teaching assistants, welfare child protection officers, early years practitioners, care assistants, and community learning facilitators.

Who is the degree for?

People who want to explore education beyond traditional teaching and are interested in how education works in society, including its moral, social, and political dimensions.

People who want to enjoy success as higher level teaching assistants, welfare child protection officers, early years practitioners, care assistants, and community learning facilitators.

People who seek a broad and flexible career path and value international and practical experience.

CAMPUS EIG EDUCATION

The EIG Education Campus in Granada

The EIG Education campus in Granada is far more than an academic venue; it is a dynamic center of innovation, intercultural exchange, and personal development, carefully designed to offer an exceptional and transformative learning experience.

Home to students from a wide range of nationalities, the campus fosters diversity, international networking, and lifelong connections. Beyond formal education, it is a vibrant environment where conferences, workshops, and extracurricular activities enrich academic training while cultivating leadership, creativity, and collaboration.

Its facilities combine modernity, functionality, and comfort, creating an inspiring atmosphere that enhances both study and interaction. Classrooms are equipped with state-of-the-art technology—projectors, interactive whiteboards, and high-speed internet—ensuring dynamic presentations, interactive workshops, and collaborative learning.

The campus also offers versatile spaces, such as the library with dedicated study and research areas, and the Forum, an adaptable venue for group projects, debates, coworking, and professional presentations. Outdoor green areas and leisure zones invite students to relax, socialize, and enjoy Granada’s exceptional climate in between academic sessions.

Strategically located, the EIG Education campus is easily accessible from all parts of the city. Bus line 9, with a dedicated stop named “EIG Education” directly in front of the building, ensures convenient transportation. Surrounded by cafés and dining services, the campus provides an ideal setting where academic excellence and quality of life go hand in hand.

THE CITY

Come to the city that breathes history.

Granada is an exceptional destination for an enriching academic and personal journey, thanks to its cultural richness, vibrant academic environment, and outstanding quality of life.

A city steeped in history and heritage, Granada is home to the Alhambra—one of Spain’s most iconic monuments—as well as historic neighborhoods such as the Albaicín and Sacromonte, which provide an inspiring backdrop for learning and discovery.

Granada embraces cultural diversity, shaped by the coexistence of Arab, Jewish, and Christian influences. This multicultural spirit fosters openness, reflection, and appreciation for diversity. The blend of traditions and lifestyles offers students the opportunity to develop a global mindset and valuable intercultural skills that go far beyond the classroom.
